

CSC-544 Design Your Webpage Collaboration Report

When developing my website, I decided to make use of my prior HTML and CSS knowledge that I had from a previous course to create my website. I wanted to include my work experience since it is relevant to my portfolio, so I included two of my current jobs. I also included my projects, from least to most ambitious, including a large-scale, long-term game project my team has been working on for three months.

I received advice from my partner Jake regarding CSS layouts. We compared our own websites to see the best way in which we can make our websites interactive. We also worked together on setting up our website on Github Pages, which is the way that our website can be viewed.
